

Carl Henry Hendrickson, who is a few hours more than a week old at this moment, today was officially dubbed "Evanston's First Baby of 1937."

Carl Henry was born at 6:37 a.m. New Year's day in St. Francis hospital, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hendrickson, 1233 Chicago avenue. No one has come forward to dispute his claim to being Evanston's first baby of 1937, and indeed, according to contest rules, it is 24 hours too late for an earlier entry to get the gifts that Evanston merchants will shower upon Carl Henry and his parents.

These gifts include a basket of fruit from the Illinois Markets; one month's diaper service from the Dy-Dee Wash; one month's supply of milk from Ratcliffe Bros. Dairy; a crib blanket, Kresge's; three months's subscription to Daily News-Index; dinner for the baby's parents at the Evanston hotel, and a 5 per cent discount on a new Willys from the Green Motor Sales.

CARL HENRY HENDRICKSON has every reason to look snug as he lies in his crib in St. Francis hospital. Wasn't he the first baby born in Evanston this year?
